POOL RULES: Persons who enter a pool and purchase tickets should make clear to the Nenana ice Classic the names of those belonging to the pool. Please do this in one of three ways:

1) Write Key on the front of one of the pool's tickets and write the names of the pool members on the back of that ticket.

2) Drop a Bit of pool members in the red can with your tickets;

3) Send a Bit of your members to the loc Classic office in Nenana.

This year is the 104th year Alaskans will watch for the exact minute of breakup on the Tanana River at Nenana.

Science:

The river usually freezes over during the months of Oct. and Nov. The ice continues to get thicker throughout the winter with the average thickness being 42" on April 1. Depending on the temperature, snow cover, wind, etc., the ice may freeze slightly more and then start to melt. The ice melts on the top due to the weather and on the bottom due to the water flow.

River:

The tripod is planted two feet into the Tanana River ice between the highway bridge and the railroad bridge at Nenana, just upriver from the Nenana River tributary. It is 300 feet from shore and connected to a clock that stops as the ice goes out.

Prize:

$800 guessing when the river Alaska from February 1 through would break up. Last year, in the classic's 103rd year, the winners shared the prize money of $311,652. $14,406,540 has been paid during the past 103 years. Payoff will be made June 1st 2020.

Tickets:

In 1917 railroad engineers bet Tickets are sold throughout April 5. A guess costs $2.50. All your tickets must be filled out with name, address, and date and time of guess. Put the tickets in one of the red Nenana Ice Classic cans.
